Pastor Green's Daily Encouragement

Have you seen or heard a weather report over the past day or two? Well it looks as though some of you who have been dreaming about a white Christmas may actually get one. Thanks a lot! I realize that Christmas looks nicer with a small amount of snow on the ground, but the reports that I've been seeing show a little more than a dusting of the white stuff. It may be a good thing that not as many of us will be doing any traveling this year, and if you are going to visit family and friends, drive carefully, and behave carefully, because there is a bigger menace out there than slick roads, and we all know what that is. This has been a rough year for many of you, and you remain in my prayers for your healing, and for your safety. The Babe of Bethlehem is arriving in two days, and there is nothing on Earth that will stop this from occurring, not a storm, not a pandemic, and not anything else. The Reason for the Season is always with us, and we will celebrate Him over the next couple of days, but don't allow the celebration to end, as His love for us never ends, and our praise and thanksgiving should never wane either. I pray for all of you that in the face of so many troubles this year, that you and yours would have a wonderful, spirit-filled Christmas and that you would be lifted high in His love.

Our song for this Western Wednesday, the eve of Christmas Eve is from a recording artist who we lost in 2020, Kenny Rogers, singing one of my favorite Christmas songs, "A Soldier's King." I hope you enjoy it even half as much as I do. And I pray that this would be the year that we all swear allegiance to our New Born Baby King. Amen.
