Pastor Green's Daily Encouragement

Super Secular Saturday greetings to everyone. I pray that if you ventured out yesterday that you did it safely. I also pray that you didn't over extend yourselves financially, especially with the uncertainty of this virus still embedded in our lives. Every day this week I've spent time thinking about all of the people and things that I'm thankful for, and every day the list continues to grow. A couple of those things included Hall's pies and cookies, and Hoover's eggnog. Yum on both parts. More importantly are the people in my life, both family and friends, and friends who have become like family. Thank you for brightening my life. The blessings just keep right on coming, daily. What an awesome God we have Who gives us so very much, and all He asks is for our faith in Him through His Son, Jesus. Just as a public service reminder, there are only three more Saturdays before Christmas. It's coming fast. I pray that God would bless the remainder of your weekend with rest, relaxation, and renewal. Find some peace today in His presence, as you thank Him for your blessings. We received our first Christmas card yesterday, and it reminded me of a song by Jim Croce called "Photographs and Memories." This is our Secular Saturday song for the final weekend in November, in this 2020, the year of covid. I pray that you are safe and protected today, in Jesus' Holy Name. Amen.
