It's Saturday, and on this day in history the Savior of the world rested in His tomb. But rest easy yourselves, Sunday is coming for those who wait. Today is Secular Saturday here and it doesn't really feel very secular when Good Friday was yesterday and Easter Sunday is tomorrow. The Spirit of God is wide awake and is directing our attention to the entrance of a tomb outside of the the city walls of Jerusalem. The Messiah was placed in that tomb yesterday, and nothing has happened since then, yet the whole world still keeps a vigil at that tomb. Saturday was quiet and still, but the anticipation for Sunday to arrive is mighty. It will remain a quiet day for us as well, so rest up in the knowledge that Jesus promised to rise in three days . . . one day remaining. Be still and know that He is God, He never disappoints. Our Secular Saturday song today is sung by John Denver and Olivia Newton John and it is called "Fly Away." God bless your Saturday.
