Pastor Green

That may have been the heaviest snow we've had all year, heavy enough that I needed a snow brush because my wipers wouldn't move it. I'm pleased that much of it melted yesterday, and I'm hopeful that the remainder will melt off today. Dare I say that winter will be over for real beginning tomorrow? I'm not a gambler but I wouldn't bet on it if I were. Yet the sunset was beautiful, and birds were still singing. Even in the midst of displeasure, God's saving grace prevails. God continues to work all things together for good to those who love Him. The obvious always stands out, the subtle beauty of a life lived in God's grace and wonder may be more difficult to find, but it's always near. That's the perfect reason that our thanks and praise should be continuously offered to our Creator Father, His Son, our Savior Jesus, and the Holy Spirit of God. Together they provide all that we need in this life, and the next. Without them there is no next life. Jump out of bed this morning with the knowledge that because Jesus Lives, we too will live, eternally with Him. Don't allow a little poor weather to ruin your day, God is still with you and He is still in control, and He always will remain that way. He is our God, and we will honor and praise Him today, and every day. Our Thursday song speaks of doing that exact thing; here is Rich Mullins singing "Sometimes by Step." Have a swell day in God's mercy and grace.
