Pastor Green

Just as I was getting ready to go to bed last night, my computer crashed . . . again. I rebooted it and went to sleep, confident that it would be fine this morning, it wasn't. But I seem to be back in business here, and I'm praying with each key stroke that it doesn't lock-up or crash again. Other than that, it's been a lovely morning thus far. Do you detect the sarcasm in that statement? Me too. Underneath any problems is the awareness that God still works all things together for good to those who love Him, so I'm not too worried about the remainder of this wonderful western Wednesday. Whatever Jesus and I do together today will be much better than anything I might attempt to do on my own. He is waiting for me every morning, and He waits for you too. When I get up and I turn my day over to Him, things start well and usually end even better. Try that today, do things His way, according to His Word, and see and experience the difference in your life. Don't make Him wait, He's already with you, just pray for His guidance, He'll deliver. He is the answer to whatever your needs are today, and He already knows your needs. Thank you Lord Jesus for supplying us with all that we need. Our country song on this Western Wednesday is "Austin" by Blake Shelton. Have a swell day.
