Is this what you've been waiting all week for, a fabulous Friday? Some of you will be thinking TGIF, Thank God It's Friday. As long as you're thinking that, go ahead and actually thank Him for this day, and for whatever this day brings. We wake to an empty canvass every morning. By the end of the day the picture that our lives paint might be tremendous, or it may look boring and mundane. Whichever painting works best for you is a gift from God, give Him your thanks and praise. Take a look at how we fit into the world and realize that we are so very blessed. We have more than any nation, yet we too often forget where these blessings come from. Here's a hint, they don't arrive because of us, they come to us through God's mercy and grace, in spite of us. So get up and get started on your painting today, and remember Who gave you this new day, and take it from there. I'll be thanking Him for everything that He provides for me and my family. His mercies are new every day, His love is eternal and everlasting. Yes, that is what my painting might look like today, with a picture of me in prayer. I pray that your's has a similar theme. Our fantastic Friday song is performed by FFH and it is called "You Found Me." And guess what, He has found us.
