Morning Folks, we're off to a new Sunday, Lord's Day. Big day at St. Paul today as several of our teens will be confirmed during our 10:45 AM service. They've been praying for this day to arrive for a couple of years now, and after much study, it has. Busy day for everyone involved. How does it appear that your day is shaping up? Perhaps not as exciting as these young people, but if you're in worship today in God's presence then anything is possible for you. If you're tired this morning, then go to church because Jesus told us that if we are "weak and heavy laden then He will give us rest." Find that rest in Him today, not in your Sealy Posturepedic. The same benefits can't be found in St. Mattress today, so get out there and find a Bible based church to worship at today, you'll be glad that you did. Lift each other up in prayer today, your family and friends and even those who may have been mean to you or who have hurt you in some way. Find forgiveness in your heart for them as well, just as God has forgiven you. Find rest for your soul in Jesus. Our song for this Sunday is "Here I Am Lord" sung by Chris Bray. It's a beautiful song, so enjoy.
