

August 2, 2021

Who could have guessed that I would still be up in the middle of the night writing this post? Today is post number 500! When this started there wasn't supposed to be number 2, let alone 500, yet here we are, Monday, August 2, 2021 and still going. Thank you for continuing to read this. I have no idea how many people are reading it, as I am only alerted if you comment or place a like, but thank you just the same. I think that the most amazing part of this journey is that I haven't missed a day yet. It almost happened on a vacation last Summer, and if Cindy hadn't figured out a way to post it I may have missed one then, and I almost missed another one in January when I was in the hospital with covid pneumonia. Don't believe for one minute that this is due to anything within me, this has been God's Holy Spirit leading this every day since March 20, 2020. I've said from the beginning that once I stopped finding things to write about, then I would quit, but here we are, and God is still giving me things to write about. This shows me how God is here to help us, especially when we are serving Him and His children. Especially when we are directing others to the Cross of Jesus. It is there that our strength is located, it there that our peace comes from, and it is at the Cross of Christ that we find our forgiveness that brings us life eternal and everlasting, what a Friend we have in Jesus. Have a marvelous Monday in the peace and joy of the Lord. Our Monday morning song is "For Such a Time as This" by Wayne Watson. God's Peace, God's joy, and God's love to you.
