Good morning and welcome to Wednesday. I'm presently in Lancaster, Pennsylvania to see Queen Esther at the Sight and Sound Theater and the hotel that we are in seems to have a problem with their wi-fi and my computer is not connecting. I'm sending today's post from my cellphone. The problem is that I can't figure out how to send a song from YouTube with it. So it may not be an actual Western Wednesday. No matter what, God is still in control of our lives and He loves us even when we are defeated by technology. He has been extremely patient and caring when we sometimes forget about Him and all He has done. Thank You Lord, for never forgetting about us. Jason just explained how to post a link to YouTube so it is a Western Wednesday and George Strait is singing "I Can Still Make Cheyenne."
