Good morning my friends. I pray that you slept well and you are ready to begin this new day that God has given us. To answer a question from yesterday- yes, Queen Esther at the Sight and Sound Theater was well worth the money and the drive to Lancaster Pennsylvania. Cindy and I have seen four of their productions and they were all wonderful. Three of them were in Lancaster and the first show we saw was in Branson Missouri. Way to Go tours in North Tonawanda is planning a two day bus trip to see Queen Esther in November. They do a great job. I think that WXRL radio is also going there this year. In every show that Sight and Sound produces, the major underlying theme is that God has a plan, and we are part of it. God is still in control and He always will be, so always place your hope and trust in Him alone. In every situation we come up against, He has the ability to help us. Use His power that comes from His love for each of us. When you learn to truly rely on Jesus, your entire life improves. Even if problems arise, with Jesus things are made better. Do you long to have a better life? Then allow the Savior of the world to live in you, to guide and direct you. Our song for this Thursday still being sent from my cellphone in Lancaster is by FFH and it is called "Open up the Sky." Peace and Joy to everyone today.
