A marvelous Monday greeting to everyone. If you are like me, and just waited nine months to see the Bills play another regular season game, I am sorry that you had to view the same thing that I did. Obviously all of the early hype about this team going to the Super Bowl and Josh Allen being the MVP was a little premature. Reality set in immediately after a 75 yard kick-off return could only muster three points. This is a perfect illustration as to why we should never place our faith, and hope, and trust in anything or anyone unless that person's name is Jesus. He is our only hope, and He is the only place we can place our trust. He is also the only way to the Father in Heaven, we're not going to achieve eternal and everlasting life through a football team. And on top of that, eternal life is way better than a Super Bowl win. Jesus alone is our MVP, He has earned it throughout every moment of time and history. Jesus is our Light and our Life, and if you're placing your faith somewhere else, you will be disappointed, not only now, but for all eternity. Our song for this Marvelous Monday is "Jesus Messiah" by Chris Tomlin. Have a great day.
