A Blessed Super Sunday to everyone today. This is the day the Lord has made, let us rejoice and be glad in it. I love His day, it offers so much promise for all of His children. Spend some time with Him at His house today and see what I mean. After worship I will be watching the Bills' game, and I never have trouble figuring out what to watch there. For the record, I went to Graham's soccer game yesterday. I watched one little fella on his team score two goals . . . for the other team in his own net. And I watched two groups of children running around somewhat aimlessly chasing a ball, but not really knowing what to do when they got near it. It was comical if anything, and it only lasted one hour. Clearly I don't go because of my love for the sport, but for my love of my grandsons. They are worth every minute I get to spend watching them. I pray that you have a most wonderful day in the name of the Lord, and I also pray that you find a Bible believing church to worship in today. Not a church that teaches that the Bible contains the word of God, but a church that understands that every word of the Bible is the Word of God. Peace and joy be to all of you today. Our Sunday hymn is by Don Moen, and it is called "Trust and Obey. Go Bills!
