Time to make the donuts. Well, not really, and if you'd ask my Doctor he would also tell you that it's not time to eat them either. That's what he tells me, but it's not always what I obey, and he knows that. He tells me these things because he is concerned about my health, but he is also well aware that I have free will and I'm going to do what I think is right for me. Life is like that in different forms, I have a genuine care and concern for the lives and health of others, but I also understand that they have the right to do what they feel is correct for their own bodies, for their own lives. And I don't have to agree with them, I only need to respect their decisions. No matter how much I care about them, they may still do things that I feel is dangerous for them, and again, it is not my call. God probably feels this way about us frequently, He absolutely knows what is best for the entire world, but we don't listen to Him. He is One Who gave us free will to begin with, and He honors that. He may not agree with us, but He allows us each to make our own mistakes, and it is always a mistake when we don't follow His word and His guidance. Well, join the club, because we are all guilty of not obeying God. The Bible says that "All have sinned and have fallen short of the glory of God." So we are in good company with the rest of the world, but we shouldn't wish to remain there. We should at all times strive to be more like Jesus, to be more obedient to God the Father. And when we are looked at by the world around us, and they are searching our hearts and minds to see if we are true followers, they will see that we are guilty of being Christians. Our song for this Fabulous Friday is simply called "Guilty." It is another song by the Newsboys. Listen, then ask yourself, am I guilty? I pray that you are. Enjoy the start to your weekend.
