Happy, Happy Thursday my friends. I pray that you had a relaxing and restful night. A good night's sleep is important to how we function during the rest of the day. One day I might just get a long night of sleep too. Thursday is always a difficult day, in one sense we are getting closer to the weekend, yet in another, the weekend still feels so far away. The smart thing would be to go back to bed for a while. Then when you wake up again, you'll be that much closer to the weekend. I'm only partially kidding here, the blessings of God come to us on every day, and not just on weekends, so it's always good to welcome every new morning with a sense of gratitude that we've been given this brand new day. His mercies are new to us once again this morning. If you're working today, give your job your best effort, no matter what you do, give it for the glory of God. If you are a parent, then give that responsibility your best effort as well. Give your best because God has given us His Son, and He is God's Best. My prayers for you today include healing where it is needed, along with the peace and joy and love of God through His greatest gift to us, His Son Jesus. In His name I lift every one of you to His throne of grace. Our song for this Thursday morning is "Open the Eyes of My Heart Lord" by Michael W. Smith. It's kind of a sing-a-long, so go ahead and sing.
