Time to make the donuts! Well, not literally, I won't be making any, but I do have a Men's Fellowship meeting at church this morning, so chances are good that we'll be eating them. Do you remember the old Dunkin Donuts commercial that began with the words of a baker getting up in the middle of the night, "Time to make the donuts?" It was decades ago, so some may not remember. I remember and here I am just like that donut baker getting up in the middle of the night too. I'm not up to bake anything, or to sell anything, I simply get up to share something, and that would be the knowledge that We have a God Who loves us so much that He gave His only Son to die for us and that whoever believes in Him would have everlasting life. There is nothing better to talk about than the love of God through His Son Jesus that provides us all with every conceivable blessing. He has given us this new day as well, so be grateful for this Saturday morning, it wasn't promised to any of us, but it still arrived for us. A day or two ago I spoke of this song and singer as part of my morning message, so I thought it would be a good time to use that song for this morning's post. This is the late Mac Davis singing his hit from the mid-1970's called "Stop and Smell the Roses." It's not just our song, it's also a great idea. Carry on my friends.
