Good Sunday morning to you. Did you remember to set your clocks back one hour last night, if not, your timing will be a little off today. It is now 3:10 AM, EST. We won't be seeing an evening sunset for a while. It will be lighter in the morning for a brief time, then we'll lose that too. This is the time of year that it's better to be a morning person rather than a night person. With either choice, we are still God's people. He loves us in the morning, He loves us in the evening, and He loves us all day long. His love and mercy never end for His children. If you're a parent, then you know how that works. If you're a grandparent, then you know even more. Unconditional love is the gift that God gives to us that we can give to others, especially our families. We know that Jesus loves, us, because the Bible tells us so. We also know because of the evidence we see in God's creation. Never allow the evidence of God to seem routine to you, it is new and it is yours daily. Our hymn for this Sunday morning is "What a Day That Will Be." Enjoy!
