Do you remember what you were doing 600 days ago? Well, I was doing the exact same thing that I'm doing right now, sending a post in the middle of the night. Today is the 600th consecutive day that I've sent one out, and I had no idea that on March 20, 2020, I would be starting something that lasted this long. In fact, I had only planned to send the first post, and none after that. None became more than a few. And during all of this time, I went to sleep the night before with no idea as to what I was going to share the next day. Every morning I wake up and God's Spirit gives me something else to write about, so it's not me, but all Him. In every area of my life that things are good, it is always about Him and not me. I didn't create anything in my life or in the lives of others, He did everything. He does the same for all of us. If you have anything good in your life, then He is the One to thank. And never believe that when something is not going well, that He should be blamed. As I wrote in that first post, God didn't sent this virus, Satan did, so never blame God for anything evil. Once again, we don't know what this new day holds, but we know that God holds us in His hands and in His heart, because we are His. And we can do all things in Christ Who gives us strength. Have a wonderful Wednesday in His name and with His blessings. Our song today as we continue with our Veteran's celebration is called "Riding with Private Malone" by David Ball. Thank You Lord, thank you Veterans.
