Howdy friends, hope you had a restful night. You are waking up to Western Wednesday, and it will probably be a wet Wednesday as well. And when we look past the rain that falls in our lives we can see the light of love, the Son Who always shines brightly in us, and when we allow it, that same light shines through us to the world around us. Let that light shine through you today. We are now mid-week of the week prior to Thanksgiving Day, and please don't allow yourselves to fall into the pattern of referring to that day as turkey day or anything other than the true title and meaning that it was given years ago. It is a day set aside to give thanks to Almighty God for the blessings that He bestows on all of us. When someone wishes you a happy turkey day, respond with a Happy or Blessed Thanksgiving. After all, that's what it's all about. A few weeks after that we'll be celebrating the birth of our Lord at Christmas, and that is more than just a happy holiday. Merry Christmas is always a great response, and it'll be here soon. Have yourselves a wonderful Wednesday, in the Savior's name and with His blessings. Our county song for today is "I Cross My Heart" by George Strait. Be well everyone, that is my prayer for you today.
