It's here, it's a Sensational Secular Saturday and I'm happy to be the first kid on the block to say "Gooooood Mooorning." That welcome is for everyone who remembers waking up to KB Radio with Dan Neaverth in the 60's & 70's. So much has changed since then in the music and radio business. I can remember waiting all day for one of my favorite songs to come on, and sometimes it didn't. Now I just go to Youtube and listen to any song ever recorded. And there is never a disc jockey talking over your favorites. I'm not sure what I prefer. As much as I miss the old days, I like the idea that I can listen to anything I like at any hour of the day. It's too bad that they don't produce music like they did back then. Everything in life changes, some for the better, others not so much. There is only one thing in life that has remained constant, and that is God. Since the beginning of Creation He has remained the same, He is unchangeable. His love is unending, His grace is enough for all of us, His forgiveness is universal, and His mercy is new to us every morning, including this morning. Wouldn't life be wonderful if everything was as dependable as the Lord? There is one thing that we can all rely on, and that is the music of the 60's and 70's was so much better than anything today, and the Grass Roots are here this morning to properly illustrate that. Here is "Wait a Million Years."
Peace to you all.
